

Sporting, the latest fashion

Gold medal: Designer Charli Cohen created her range inspired by the world of sport

A Kingston University graduate has come up with a fitness-themed fashion line, writes Hana Hausmeister.

Sports-mad Charli Cohen, 22, based her successful line on female weightlifters, using dumbbells, dip belts and kettlebells as inspiration.

She said: "I love that, once [these women are] outside the gym, you would never guess they could bench press their own bodyweight – there is something quite undercover about it."

With quirky designs and using only eco-friendly materials, Miss Cohen created a sustainable and practical set of sports clothing she put to the test herself.

She said: "I have tested all of these outfits in the gym so I know they are fit for purpose."

Having started up a business alongside the project, Miss Cohen is planning to combine the two in the future.